CONFERENCE BRIEF:

The American Society of Civil Engineers-India section (ASCE-IS) is organizing single day international conference on Friday - Sept. 8, 2023 at The Ashok Hotel, Delhi, India in conjunction with G20 summit. There is a need to expedite and transform how infrastructure design and standards are responding to the climate crisis and explore how infrastructure professionals in the field of policy, design, regulation, and procurement can protect and improve the lives of poor, marginalized, and vulnerable populations and ensure that we leave no one behind. Different pathways are being elevated to this end, and through this event, the priority is to leverage established engineering associations in partnership with procurement, R&D, and digital, to influence planning, designing, constructing, operation, maintenance, and retrofitting of all infrastructure in all geographies. Engineers recognize their ethical responsibility to build safe, resilient, and sustainable infrastructure. Engineers stand ready to work in concert with the G20 leaders and look forward to fostering a closer relationship with all infrastructure stakeholders.

The Conference will highlight:

- how engineering standards, regulations and infrastructure procurement practices can de-risk projects, attract more funding, be used to reduce embodied carbon, promote life cycle cost comparisons, protect and restore the environment; and
- prioritization of strategies and actions to be taken collaboratively or in coordination/synchronization

The conference will recommend a roadmap for policies, standards, and programs to attract financing to build quality infrastructure that leaves no one behind, ensuring that social, economic, environmental, and institutional resiliency and sustainability are appropriately integrated to build better before disasters strike. The Conference is intended to provide direction on how financial institutions and MDBs through policy/regulatory work with government, and their own procurement policies and practices can ensure “quality infrastructure” for climate action, specifically through engagement with professional bodies in the infrastructure sectors.

The conference would bring world leaders, experts and technician together. Asian Development Bank (ADB), World Federation of Engineering Organizations (WFEO) representing 30 million members, Coalition for Disaster Resilient Infrastructure (CDRI), Asian Civil Engineering Coordinating Council (ACECC) representing 17 member engineering societies has already agreed to support the conference. Some of the world experts as key note speakers are Secretary John Kerry-USA, Senator Dr. Rosa Galvez-Canada, Jeff Taylor- Philippines-Chief Procurement Officer-Asian Development Bank. Invited Guests of Honor include Honorable President Joseph Biden-USA, Honorable Prime Minister Narendra Modi-India, Honorable President Gustavo Francisco Petro- Colombia, Honorable Prime Minister Justine Trudeau, Canada.

As you are aware, success of such event is possible only with support from industry. We have subsidized the event assuming full support from industry. Hence, we look forward for your full support.
